

Georgia Council for International Visitors
GLOBAL LUNCH FORUM — APRIL 2016
In Partnership with the Atlanta Council on International Relations (ACIR) and the Sam Nunn School, Georgia Institute of Technology

Global Lunch Forum

British Photojournalist, Dr. Lee Karen Stow

Tuesday, April 12, 12:00 – 1:30 PM

Georgia Institute of Technology
William C. Wardlaw Jr. Center, Gordy Dining Room
177 North Avenue NW
Atlanta, GA 30332

Join us for a captivating and informative slideshow presentation by renowned British photojournalist and humanitarian, Dr. Lee Karen Stow.

Poppies: Women and War was inspired by Moina Belle Michael of Athens, Georgia, who, close to a century ago, was instrumental in immortalizing the poppy flower in silk, as a symbol of remembrance. Stow's portraits of the resilient poppy flower, in many colors, are shown alongside an evolving series of portraits of women worldwide involved in or affected by war, from the First World War to the present.

Cost per person (includes lunch): $15; GT Students: $5. Space is limited and reservations are necessary.
Please RSVP by 5:00 PM on Wed., April 6 to suzy@gciv.org or via PayPal at: <http://gciv.org/programs/glef/>.

About GCIV

The mission of the Georgia Council for International Visitors is to build relationships between the people of our state and leaders around the world. Our vision is that every Georgia citizen has the opportunity to be more globally engaged. For more information about membership, visit www.gciv.org/join.

Georgia Council for International Visitors | 100 Edgewood Avenue, Suite 1560 | Atlanta, GA 30303 | T: 404-832-5560 | F: 404-832-5568 | www.gciv.org